

Happy Valentine's Day!

To my Funny Valentine,

My heart's aflame for you. The way you do the things you do, all the little things that drive me crazy, only make me love you more. Cupid has shot me through with his burning arrow, and I am mush, all over you.

Where would I be without you? Without the way you propel a shopping cart down the aisle while simultaneously reaching for the granola, wrangling the kids, and tallying the taxes. Your eight hour marathons of the Lifetime channel. Or figure skating.

No, others may want a perfect life, but, My Darling, I just want you.

So say you'll be my Valentine forever more. Let me not wait--plant a kiss on me, and whisper in my ear that you love me too. Because there is no one I would rather wake up with than you--curlers, fuzzy robe, bunny slippers, and all. You make my life complete.

And with the children jumping on the bed at five a.m., shoving burnt toast at us, and spilling the orange juice, I will smile the kind of smile that comes from years of love and joy shared together, a love so profound it knows no match. Because you are my one-and-only. Once we were a pair, now we are a full house.

Speaking of which, there isn't anyone I'd rather be on my hands and knees with at 4 a.m. sopping up the toilet water because of our little angels crammed a whole roll of toilet--inch by inch--into the bowl. I will smile, for just that reason: we are together.

Because without you, I am nothing.

So, this may not be a diamond jewel, or bouquet of red roses, or box of expensive chocolates, but know that instead I give you my heart, now and forever--and all the love I have in it. For you are the key, my Darling, to my heart. You, and you alone, have unlocked it. And while my bank account may be empty, my heart is full--full of love, for you.

Be mine always, XOXOX

Your One And Only

