

Happy Valentine's Day!

To my dear child,

Happy Valentine's Day.

Today is the day people tell the ones they love how much they mean to them, and I will try, but my love for you is boundless. Farther than the moon, deeper than the ocean. A love you cannot even conceive, for you are a part of me. A living reminder of the best of me, wrapped in a bundle of love and joy and wonder. I marvel at how you approach life, so trusting and sure. I worry sometimes, but mostly I am just amazed and inspired by you.

They say Cupid helps people fall in love by using his magic arrow, but Cupid didn't have to make me fall in love with you. You did that the very first moment I met you. And you do it over and over, each and every day. You are so loveable! Perhaps even more so when you are at your most devilish. Maybe because it is those times that you need me the most.

I may not say it often enough, but I love you so much. If you imagined a heart as big as the whole world, that wouldn't be big enough to show how much I love you. My arms open wide, I want to keep you close, yet know I must let you venture out into the world. For that is what love means--to let another be the person they were meant to be. But I am, and always will be, here for you. Waiting, praying, wishing you all the riches in the world. The riches of the heart.

People give gifts of chocolates and flowers on Valentine's Day, but you are the best present I could ever get. Never forget how much I love you. On Valentine's Day, and every single day after.

Love and Kisses
XOXOXOXO

